Nature's Own Palette: The Art of Undyed Wool

Nature is a masterful colourist. Long before dyes and pigments, sheep's wool arrived in a beautiful spectrum of its own, from warm creams and soft, silvery greys through to rich, earthy browns and deep, dramatic charcoals. Each tone is shaped entirely by the breed, the landscape and the life of the animal.

For the NATURAL Collection, we celebrate this quiet artistry by sourcing wool from distinctive European sheep breeds, including the striking Racka and the gentle Valais Blacknose. Renowned for their varied and characterful fleeces, these breeds offer a natural palette of exceptional depth and warmth, each fibre carrying the honest story of its origin.

By choosing to leave this wool completely undyed, we allow every rug to draw its colour directly from nature itself. Nothing is added, nothing is altered. What you see is the true character of the fleece, with all its subtle shifts in tone and texture preserved and celebrated.

This considered approach lies at the very heart of the NATURAL Collection, and it carries a beautiful truth with it: no two rugs will ever be exactly alike. Each piece is wonderfully individual, a one-of-a-kind creation shaped by the raw, unaltered beauty of the wool. In embracing this natural variation, your rug becomes a genuine expression of nature's own hand, bringing enduring warmth and authentic elegance into your home.
